Surbya 2: Return of the Brits

Reflecting UCCF's value of 'Generous in World Mission', we're off to partner with the Serbian CU movement (EUS) again this summer by taking a team of London CU students to help lead their English language outreach camp. Quite apart from the fact that I get to spend a solid two weeks with a lovely team, there are many reasons why this is so valuable:

- ✓ Giving ±10 students their first taste of international mission is so valuable; we pray that some of these may go on to serve abroad in years to come.
- ✓ There's something especially encouraging about seeing the same Holy Spirit drawing completely different people from the other side of world to know and love the same Jesus.
- ✓ As we partner with EUS, it's both wonderful to be an encouragement to them and to see a glimpse of what they are doing in Serbia long term.
- ✓ The Serbians make nice kebabs.
- ✓ Spending at least an hour a day reading the Bible and praying with the British team out there helps to really cement good convictions.
- ✓ It is humbling to see how the movement faces their challenges, which are very different from our own; nominal Christianity, unemployment, lack of resources in the church etc.

Perhaps this is why all six of my guys who went on UCCF Summer Teams last summer have been exceptional leaders in the CU this year.

What a great prayer! This term, please pray this for:

- The Serbian team- as they prepare to head out to the Balkans in July.
- EUS- the students, staff and supporters of the Serbian CU movement.
- My students- especially those who are heading back to difficult family homes this summer.
- Myself and Lois- as I prepare for my new role and as we continue to be plugged into church and life in London.

Job news

I have loved the last three years working with UCCF, benefiting from the opportunities and wisdom built up over a century of reaching out to Britain's universities and walking alongside a whole bunch of students in the Midlands and London. So, it is with great delight that I can share that, having accepted a role as Assistant Team Leader for London, I shall be staying with UCCF for a few more years.

Primarily, my new role will see me staying in my current patch for at least a further three years, whilst adding a little more responsibility within the London-wide team. Seeing SW London as having particular opportunities and challenges compared to the rest of the capital, I'm excited to continue investing in this corner of the world.

The role will not be without its challenges however. I already find it tricky to manage the staggering need at each of my universities and now I need to be wise to make room to supervise other team members, organise a handful of training days and to assist with some other London-wide projects. What's more, Natasha 'Mother Russia' Rayan is stepping down as Team Leader this summer after a decade or so of serving the CU movements in Siberia, St Petersburg and London, moving to be the Missions Director at All Souls, Langham Place. She will be greatly missed and I'd appreciate your prayers as UCCF looks to appoint a successor!

The best thing about this news is that RHCU recently presented me with the award 'Least Likely to Ever Get a Promotion.' Take that, you sods.

I'm still a way off raising my full salary costs for UCCF. If you'd like to support this work financially, that would be much appreciated- please get in touch!
